"A COSMIC EXPERIENCE"

The rumors abound as to just who will direct the new Star Wars Movie (Episode VII), and it's still several years away! Matthew Vaughan is currently in talks to take on the long-awaited "Star Wars" film, much to the delight of many fans. Collider (a site on the internet for all sorts of rumors) cites a source that states taking on "Star Wars" is the main reason he dropped out of "X-Men: Days of Future Past." However, the website also notes this is definitely a rumor and unconfirmed.

And even more exciting news where Star Wars is concerned, Harrison Ford might come back to the "Star Wars" universe to reprise his legendary role as Han Solo. EW quotes an unnamed "highly placed source" as saying, "Harrison is open to the idea of doing the movie and he's upbeat about it, all three of them are," referring to Ford, Mark Hamill and Carrie Fisher. The article notes that Ford will likely not go into the next level of talks until there's a script and a director in place -- either could be deal breakers. Though with Vaughan rumored to be in talks for the film, the director's chair could be filled sooner rather than later. All in all, this is already shaping up to be something most epic!!!

The Morningway family had so much fun visiting STAR WARS Identities - now we want to hear about your experiences - please share your tales of adventure, your character development experience and any pictures you would like to share - we want to include some in future Chronicles as well as create a facebook album. Please share at quantumcomics@shaw.ca

It looks as though Uncanny X-Men will be slated for a re-launch under the Marvel NOW banner. It will be written by Brian Michael Bendis, and drawn by Chris Bachalo. From the looks of the teaser image, it will feature Cyclops, Emma Frost, and most probably Magneto.

Continuing with Marvel NOW news, there is going to be a new team of Defenders taking up the call! Valkyrie has been tasked with creating a new team from the mortals of Midgard, and it looks like her first recruit will be Misty Knight, as evidenced by this cover of the Fearless Defenders #1. The title will be helmed by Cullen Bunn, and William Sliney.

The big news out of DC this week is the cancellation of the Vertigo title Hellblazer. DC says that since they are bringing the Constantine character full on into the regular universe, there is no longer a need for the character to remain in the Vertigo-verse. The new title will be called "Constantine" and will debut in the wake of his mature audience counterpart's departure. Joined by artist Renato Guides, Venditti's stories will take the current Justice League Dark charter member on a trip through the DCU's magical side roads, promising fans of the character that this Constantine will retain his edge. Hellblazer was Vertigo's longest running series, and will end with #300.
